EM Footprint Reduction Goals

40% by FY 2011, ~90% by FY 2015%

- Total footprint under EM control includes both impacted and un-impacted areas (931 sq. miles).
- Total footprint reduction mileage includes cleanup performed by both base program and ARRA.
- Footprint reduction is assumed at time of physical completion of activities with petition for regulatory approval to follow.
- Footprint reduction does not mean the moving of site boundary fences.
- At the end of EM's mission, some property will require long term maintenance, but most will be available for beneficial reuse.
- FY 2015 footprint reduction goal assumes favorable funding profile.

Note: One square mile of footprint reduction planned for "other sites" by FY 2011.

Things Small Businesses Should Consider When Responding to Request for Proposal (RFPs)

- Read the RFP through carefully and make two checklists as follows:
 - One checklist that identifies all of the necessary documentation that should be submitted, such as agreements, past experience forms, number of copies of the proposal, etc.
 - Second checklist of what requirements need to be addressed or responded to in your proposal such as due date, capabilities, strategies, etc.

Continuation of Things Small Businesses Should Consider

- Pay particular attention to Section C, L, & M
 - Section C provides detailed scope of work
 - Sections L & M are used by proposal rating team to evaluate proposal
 - make sure every required item is addressed in your response to proposal
 - use professional proposal writer if possible
(proposals often have page limitation requirements)

Continuation of Things Small Businesses Should Consider

- Review project website to obtain background information
 - obtain copies of approved documents that are similar to those required by RFP.
- Provide a detailed basis of estimate that outlines how your company is going to address all of the work required under the RFP.
- Ask questions – all RFPs allow offerors to ask questions formally; ask questions to clarify specifics of the RFP so that your response to the RFP has the best chance of being considered.

Continuation of Things Small Businesses Should Consider

- Don't be afraid of asking for an extension to the due date.
 - But be sure to provide a good and valid reason for the extension request; and don't ask too early or too late (1 – 2 weeks before the deadline is reasonable).
- If you are not awarded a contract
 - ask for a de-briefing
 - ask what the shortcomings were in your proposal that caused it not to be selected
 - listen to the response to improve future submissions

In Conclusion

- Provide information in requested form and format to meet criteria specified
 - Tip: Do not wait until the last minute to prepare special types of documents or formats, especially if you need help in preparing them.
- Prepare proposal to demonstrate understanding of the problem and articulate your solution
 - Tip: Your goal is to gain the confidence of the review team that your offer is superior to the competition and your company is capable of completing the job to their satisfaction.
- Demonstrate your company's qualifications to successfully complete the job
 - Tip: Provide documentation including testimonials to help reassure proposal reviewers of your company qualifications.
